FARMERS PLEAD FOR SHOALS ACTION

COMMITTEE TELLS COMPANIES TO FILE BIDS IMMEDIATELY

Invitations Forwarded To 18 Prospective Bidders To Act

WORTHINGTON IS BACK ON THE JOB

Hepburn Informed His Offer Must Match That Of Ford

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 23—Representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and Farmers Union today gave testimony before the Muscle Shoals joint congressional committee.

Major Burns of the ordnance department of the army, discussed manufacture of nitrogen from an ammonium standpoint. The committee has sent invitations to 18 concerns that are prospective bidders, to make their offers at once.

Frederick T. Hepburn, president of Wallbridge and company, investment bankers of New York, yesterday discussed his proposed bid to operate the Shoals by a private corporation. Under his bid the corporation would pay an annual rental of $2,000,000, after the first year, for a lease for 50 years on the entire property.

During the first year it would pay ten per cent of the income from the power. Operation would be divided for fertilizer and chemical production and power distribution.

The committee informed him that it must confine its considerations to proposals equal to or better than the offer of Henry Ford for lease of the property and asked him to study his plan and re-submit it.

Without saying whether he would do so, Mr. Hepburn withdrew and took the copy of his proposal with him.

J. W. Worthington, of Washington and formerly of Alabama, appeared again before the committee and told of various plans for the development of Muscle Shoals.

He told the committee he did not represent anyone, was interested in the Alabama property purely from a development standpoint and was opposed to government operation. He declared he never had represented Henry Ford, the American Cyanamid company or any other bidders and never had received any pay for his services in connection with proposed Muscle Shoals legislation.

The committee set aside next Monday to hear W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid company, who will discuss proposed terms of a bid the company is willing to offer. E. F. Price of the Union Carbide company, also informed the committee he would appear as soon as possible to discuss a bid.

Elon H. Hooker of New York, who last year had a bid known as the Hooker, White, Atterbury proposal to operate Muscle Shoals in partnership with the government, has been allotted next Thursday by the committee. C. E. Graff, of the American Nitrogen products company, Seattle, Wash also informed the committee he would reach Washington Thursday.

MAN'S CONFESSION TO KILLING RIVAL REPUDIATED NOW

Dorland Insists That He Gave Statement Under Duress

BEATING BY STATE POLICE IS ALLEGED

Finger Prints On Pistol May Prove Trump Card In Probe

(Associated Press)

SANDUSKY, Mich., March 23.—Pearl Dorland today repudiated the confession he made yesterday in which he said he had killed Roy Lee, 19 years old, after Mrs. Dorland, his estranged wife, admitted intimacy with Lee.

Dorland said he had been beaten by state police and made a confession to escape further punishment.

Dorland's 20 year old wife, Elizabeth killed herself at the funeral of Lee. Dorland's confession ascribed the act to her fear that she would be questioned concerning the manner in which Lee met his death.

Dorland is 46 years old.

Lee was killed the night of March 6th as he sat in a parked automobile in front of the William Sager farm home, in which Dorland, his wife and several others, were having a liquor party. It was first believed Lee shot himself because he had lost the affections of Alice Martin, a sister of Elizabeth Dorland.

The Dorland confession was made after he had been grilled for several hours. The trump card in the hands of the state investigators was played Monday, when they told Dorland that his finger prints were identical with those found on the weapon with which Lee was shot. Dorland's statement was made shortly afterward.

ABATTOIR PLAN LAID BEFORE JUNIOR UNIT BY HEALTH OFFICIAL

Dr. McRee Addresses a Meeting Of Board's Directors

CHANCE FOR NEW INDUSTRY SEEN

Final Approval Is Given Advertising Plan For Twin Cities

The abattoir plan was laid before the directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night by Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan County health official who explained that soon the councils of Albany and Decatur will be called upon to vote on the meat slaughtering measure, similar to the ones already in effect in most of the progressive cities of the nation.

Dr. McRee explained that he desired that the public generally, as well as city officials, have some idea of how the meat ordinance works out. He stated that the ordinance proposed here would have virtually the same provisions as other ordinances, now in effect and proving highly practicable, in other communities. The law would provide that all meat offered for sale in the Twin Cities would have to be slaughtered at a central point, or abattoir. The law would provide for inspection of the meat before slaughter and afterwards. An inspection fee would be charged for this work and the abattoir fee would be in addition also.

The total cost of slaughter, under the meat ordinance plan, however, probably would be little, if anything, in excess of $2.00 an animal.

New Industry Possible In addition to the matter of protection of health, Dr. McRee stated that one concern already is willing to build an abattoir and packing plant here, should the ordinance be adopted. It would be the plan of the abattoir management, he said, not only to handle the slaughtering for farmers of this section, but to ship in enough cattle also to provide sufficient meat for their packing plant. The company plans to market, at first, wieners and sausage, broadening its activities as the business is developed.

Advertising Approved The directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night gave their final approval to the advertising booklet as submitted by the committee which had been named at a previous membership meeting.

The committee expects to have the booklets ready for distribution within ten days or two weeks, members reported.

Reservations Not To Be 'Explained'

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Coolidge doubts that it will be necessary for the United States to send a representative to the Geneva meeting of the 48 world court states to explain the reservations attached by the senate to America's adherence to the court.

The President takes the position that the senate reservations speak for themselves and that there would be no reason to attempt a further explanation. Despite objections raised at the recent meeting of the council of the League of Nations, it was said at the white house today that the President is satisfied with the method followed by the United States in sending formal notification of its adherence to each national individual.

He believes this method meets all international requirements.

BURGLAR PUT TO ROUT BY WOMAN

Wife Of Patrolman In Birmingham Forces Robber To Flee

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 23.—The proverbial helplessness of woman was given the lie early today when a burglar fled from the home of Mrs. S. A. Stewart, pursued by a shower of bullets.

Mrs. Stewart, who lives at 7007 Hillman avenue, was alone in the house with her young daughter. Her husband, who is a Birmingham patrolman, was on duty. She was awakened by a noise at a window downstairs. Creeping down, clutching a heavy service revolver, she saw a man at the window and without hesitation, opened fire. The man fled and reports of the gun brought neighbors hurrying to her assistance.

The burglar had removed the screen and evidently was busy jimmying the window when Mrs. Stewart was aroused.

Sometime during the night burglars entered the home of Mrs. C. H. Williams, 506 St. Charles avenue, West End. They removed a purse containing $275 from a bureau drawer, and escaped. Evidently a pass key was used to gain entrance.

Detectives Riley and Christian are investigating.

Shoots Realtor Then Takes Poison

(Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., March 23.—Edward Torres, 39, retired real estate operator, was injured seriously here today when shot down by a woman alleged to have been Mattie Davis, 25. The Davis woman later was carried to a hospital in a dying condition from poison which police said she took after the shooting.

The woman broke a window and fired two shots at Mrs. Torres, after being refused admittance to the home, it was said. She then turned the revolver upon Torres.

Mrs. Torres was not injured. Hospital attendants held little hope for recovery of either Torres or the woman.

MESSAGE TO DAILY TELLS OF PROGRESS MADE IN WAGE PLAN

Assistant Manager Of Belief Understanding Will Be Reached

DATE NOT KNOWN OF NEW SCALE

More Than 2,000 Men Would Be Effected By Increase Here

Strong possibility that employees of the Louisville and Nashville railroad here, and all over the system, soon may receive wage increases was seen today in a series of conferences being held in Louisville in regard to the wage schedule.

These negotiations, according to a long distance message to The Daily from W. E. Smith, assistant general manager of the Louisville and Nashville, are not yet completed and pending the completion, the exact status of the railroad wage question will not be definitely established. He indicated, however, that progress is being made and the details cleared away.

The following Associated Press dispatch from Louisville gave the view of the negotiations now held in railroad circles in Louisville.

Employees of the Louisville and Nashville railroad shops and Charles F. Giles, superintendent of machinery, have reached a tentative agreement for a wage increase. W. E. Smith, assistant general manager of the railroad said today.

Mr. Giles is unable to make an announcement concerning the amount of the increase of when it will become effective. Officials would not state the total amount of the increase nor the number of persons affected.

The L. & N. management also has before it the demand of trainmen and conductors for an increase of approximately $1 a day in wages. The trainmen and conductors of the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis railroad made a similar demand.

'Of course whatever increase might be granted at one point, would include also all other points,' Mr. Smith stated, in answer to an inquiry from The Daily if all of the Louisville and Nashville employees in this territory would be included in any wage boost which might be negotiated.

'I cannot give any idea at this time when the negotiations will have been concluded and the results of the negotiations put into effect,' he said. 'There is a strong possibility, however, that a mutual understanding may be reached which will prove entirely satisfactory to the thousands of employees of the road.'

Whatever wage increase might be effected would effect some 2,500 employees of the Louisville and Nashville in this immediate territory, including trainmen, it was estimated in railroad circles.

Modesty Forced On Palm Beach Girls

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 23.—Two young women have been arrested by Palm Beach police in their drive against the display of the feminine form on local beaches and downtown streets. The women, who gave their names as Helen Ford and Julia Brown, with a local hotel as their addresses, posted bonds for appearance in court this afternoon.

The policeman who made the arrest on an indecent exposure charge, said the young women carried their bathing suits, rolled into a neat bundle under their arm and were clad only in this kimono.

'SATAN IN SABLES'

By Bradley King

"Satan in Sables" with Lowell Sherman is a picturization of this novel

SYNOPSIS

Paul, innocent young brother of Prince Michael Yervedoff, is swept for revenge by Dolores, one of Michael's cast-offs. Michael, meanwhile, is honestly interested in Colette, an unworldly girl whose motherless nephew has been stolen by her Apache brother-in-law, Emil. Through his friend, Decline, the Apache King, Michael recovers the boy for Colette. The platonic friendship of Michael and Colette ends in a passionate embrace.

CHAPTER XII

Michael felt himself to be an up and doing fellow indeed as he rode homeward over the wide and black-paved rivers that were the boulevards of Paris under the wan stars of past midnight. There had been a time, when Michael was in his early twenties, that people in Moscow, in Vienna, in this same Paris, had involuntarily turned to look well at him when he strode along the streets, so cocky and pugnacious and fine a human animal was he, so pregnant was his manner with the menace and marvel of glorious youth. Tonight Michael felt all the thrilling tumult of that flush hour of his period of greatest ego roistering again in his veins; all the enthusiastic will of youth to conquer and to achieve had bounded out of his blood, the flabby corpulence of ambitionless lethargy.

He was in love—genuinely, tenderly, and for the first time. He would waste and idle no longer, but work and husband; he would do this and that, and thus and so; he would be Michael Yervedoff, the busy humanitarian—not Prince Michael, the trifle.

He would marry Colette, and reclaim Paul; he would father Billy, and let Emil on two feet, face forward, in another land; he would shock, amaze and gratify Aunt Sophia and shake, confound, and abash Armand, Freddy Erskin, Ninon and the rest of that parasitical crew.

"Come upstairs with me quickly—it is Monsieur Paul!"

Thus, thought Michael in that genial and benevolent spirit of serving which is a blessed part and parcel of the joy of giving.

This was on the flood tide of his emotional discovery of himself, as he rode home. But there is a curious and inevitable consistency and regularity in the tides of men's moods as there is in the unceasing ocean; every flood tide has an ebbing, every rise a falling, great or small as the beach of circumstances may describe.

Servant with white face and uneasy eyes, met Michael at the door. "Come upstairs with me quickly, Your Highness—it is Monsieur Paul!"

While Michael flung his hat and stick, coat and gloves, anxiously aside then trotted up the stairs with him, Sergius—who had become almost inarticulate through his years of service from an ingrowing habit of silent anticipation without recourse to more than monosyllabic speech—explained, with a color of feeling in his words rare for one so stolidly efficient:

"I heard him fall against the outer door, and found him there, sir, in a sort of stupor. He had a pistol in his hand. I took it from him, carried him upstairs, put him to bed. Then I summoned Doctor Agnell, who said—'shock—must have absolute quiet, or will lose mind. Doctor gave him sleeping powder. Monsieur Paul said in his delirium, sir—that he—that he—was going to shoot—you!'"

They had reached the bedside now, Michael, shocked but not surprised that Paul's delirious rage had been directed partly against him, looked down sorrowfully upon the bleary face and tumbled, matted head of his once fair young brother—signs of dissipation and craze that even Sergius' kind ministrations had not erased. Paul was so much the blighted boy that Michael's heart sank, freighted with compassion and regret.

"Poor old fellow," he mourned stroking the graying boy's head "evidently the bubble has burst and you know the truth. Well—I'll take you away from Paris just as soon as you're able to go and I'll do my best to help you to forget!"

All through that night Michael with mothering tenderness in his manner, sat in a chair beside Paul's bed, the unconscious boy's hand in his. A complexity of feeling oppressed Michael, who had never before seen Paul intoxicated. He devoutly hoped that Paul had found out the truth, and that he and Dolores had parted for ever.

"Surely, nothing less than this would have caused him to get into this shape," he reasoned.

No matter how sorry a spectacle Paul was at that moment, Michael consoled himself with the thought that the condition was but temporary—that the cure ought to be permanent.

When Michael, worn out with his watching, dozed off to sleep just as the maroon dawn dispersed the night it was to dream not of Paul or of Dolores—but of Colette.

The next noon when Michael walked into his lawyer's office and found Emil already there, the boy's impression that he had formed of the Apache was further increased by a good look at him in the light of day. Emil's shifty eyes seemed to have trouble to face the bright noon.

It did not take long to draw up and sign the necessary papers, then Michael counted out a roll of notes.

"You're not going to let me leave in South America without—enough money—?" he asked. Emil whined pleadingly, his greedy eyes on the money in Michael's hand.

Michael was curt and contemptuous: "Here is enough to get you there and keep you for six months. In that time, you will either have to find a job or be a little further along the road to hell than you are now!"

Presently Emil was gone out of Michael's life for all time.

When Michael quickly returned home he found that Paul had not yet come out of his stupor.

"It is best so," Michael reflected "for when he wakes up he will probably be refreshed physically and mentally and I'll be able to take him in hand. Then, fresh scenery and fresh surroundings will do more than anything to make him forget this horrible affair."

Not wishing to leave Paul's side Michael dispatched a note to Colette by messenger, saying that Emil had signed the agreement and gone. He explained that he was unable to go to her owing to Paul's illness. In conclusion he wrote:

"See how right I was, dearest? Our platonic friendship has taken wings to be replaced by love. A true and lasting love which means happiness for us the rest of our lives. Since I can see you, at least send me a little note by this messenger. It will be the first letter that I have ever received from you. Why, I don't even know what your handwriting looks like. It need not be a long letter; in fact, just three words will do, providing they are the right three words."

Michael.

No sooner had the messenger to Colette left than Armand was announced. Michael, descending to the library, found him breathless.

"I couldn't find a taxicab," he gasped, "which is my usual predicament when I want one in a hurry, and I almost ran here all the way from the Place de l'Opera. Tell me, have you seen Paul?"

Michael reluctantly admitted that Paul was asleep upstairs.

"The best thing for him, poor fellow," Armand replied, "for I imagine that he has been through a bitter ordeal. And how did I guess it? Well, listen! Taking my daily constitutional, I was just turning into the Rue du Châmbard when I walked right into Dolores—right into her—so that there was no chance for escape, for we almost collided. I raised my hat and was about to pass on, but she stopped me."

"Monsieur Armand," she said, "I presume that you sometimes see our mutual friend, Prince Yervedoff, occasionally? There was a devilish smile on her lips, Michael."

"Go on—go on—!" Michael prompted impatiently.

"Well, when I told her that I saw you very often, in fact, that I was thinking of dropping in on you this afternoon, she said, 'Be good enough to take a message to him from me, if you will. Say that the pleasure of being his devoted sister-in-law—'"

"Good God!" Michael broke in tensely, "do you think—that it did happen? Do you think that Paul married her?"

WHY TOO MUCH MEAT OVERTAXES KIDNEYS

There Is No Provision in the Human Mechanism for Storing Up Surplus Protein (Meat), So Kidneys Must Get Rid of It.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

LAST Sunday I had dinner in a beautiful home in Washington. My charming hostess looked across the table at her equally charming granddaughter and said:

"If I don't live to be a hundred I shall be ashamed of myself!"

There is a lot in the will to live. If you care to do it you can sit down and almost wish yourself into the grave. You can be gloomy and miserable and by your very attitude of mind prepare the way for the germs ever ready to attack and destroy you.

To desire to be a hundred and to be ready to sacrifice the tendency to self-indulgence, is half the battle. You must have the spirit.

But my hostess does better than merely wish to be a hundred. She orders her life so well that I shall be astonished if she doesn't realize her ambition.

This lady is a vegetarian. She buys no meat and has none served in her home. But at her table nobody misses meat. There are so many tempting dishes of vegetables, fruits and cereals, that you leave the table satisfied. Indeed, you are more than satisfied—you have the delicious sensation of having had exactly the right quantity of exactly the right foods.

Meat, that is, lean meat, is almost pure protein. Almost everything we eat contains some protein, but meat is the chief source of protein supply for the average person.

You must bear in mind, however, that you need less protein than you do all the other food stuffs. Four ounces a day is enough. If you have eaten three or four ounces of protein already, you can see that a quarter or a half a pound of meat in addition will cause you to exceed your supply by a whole lot.

It isn't good for you to consume too much protein. All you eat in excess of the required quantity must be eliminated. It cannot be stored up in the body as the excess quantities of sugar, starches and fat are.

All these go to make fat and to add to your weight. But there is no provision for keeping the extra protein, so it must be gotten out of the system.

The kidneys are speeded up to do this. The meat taken in excess of the building and repair needs, will call upon them to do two or three times as much work as they are normally intended to do. If this day, it must be expected that trouble will follow.

As a matter of fact, inflammation of the kidneys will result. This condition is what we know as "Bright's disease." Nobody can hope to live to be a hundred, if the kidneys are abused.

So, you see, my hostess of the other day has paved the way for living to be a hundred. She is not abusing her organs by making unreasonable demands upon them. I believe she will live beyond the century mark and I pray that she may.

Florida's "A. P." Also Shows Gain

(Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., March 23—Coincident with the growth of Florida has been the natural expansion of its newspapers and The Associated Press service. In point of Associated Press membership, Florida now ranks fifth among the states, being surpassed in the South only by Texas.

Fifty-two daily newspapers in Florida receive the service of The Associated Press, and so rapid has been the rise of daily journals over the state that a number of other newspapers are petitioning for membership.

Ten years ago there were only four leased wire Associated Press newspapers in this state. Today there are fifty-five, an increase of almost 800 per cent.

Beyond the confines of the South, the Florida membership is exceeded in size by the Associated Press newspapers of New York, California and Pennsylvania. If present growth in Florida can be taken as a criterion it is probable that the membership figures six months hence will show the Peninsula state challenging these states for a position nearer the top of the column.

Applications for membership in this state have been reaching the New York and Atlanta offices of the Associated Press in such volume during the past year that in some instances the traffic department has been forced to devote considerable overtime arranging for an efficient personnel and equipment.

The Florida leased wire system extends down the east coast of the state from Jacksonville to the southernmost tip of the United States at Key West, and radiating again from Jacksonville through the peninsula proper to Tampa and St. Petersburg; and from Tampa through the south central portion into Sarasota and Bradenton.

The day and night trunk circuits are served from Atlanta and the day and night state circuits from Jacksonville. The points on the Atlanta trunk circuits are the Jacksonville Times-Union, Jacksonville Journal, Miami Herald, Miami Daily News, Tampa Times, Tampa Tribune, St. Petersburg Independent, St. Petersburg Times, Clearwater Herald and Clearwater Sun. These circuits in operation twenty-four hours a day, are equipped with an automatic printer, which transmits news at the rate of sixty words a minute. The printer wire is paralleled by a Morse wire.

The newspapers on the day and night state circuits are the St. Augustine Record, Daytona Beach Journal, West Palm Beach Times, West Palm Beach Post, Fort Lauderdale Daily News, Key West Citizen, Key West Morning Call, Sanford Herald, Orlando Reporter-Star, Orlando Sentinel, Lakeland Star Telegram, Lakeland Evening Ledger, Winter Haven Chief, Aven Park Twin Cities Sun, Bradenton Herald, Sarasota Times, Sarasota Herald, Gainesville Sun, Pensacola Journal, Daytona Beach Daily News, Deland News, Fort Myers Press, Fort Myers Tropical News, Sebring Daily American, Fort Lauderdale Sun, Vero Beach Press and Ocala Times.

There are fifteen papers in Florida which receive the "pony" report. These newspapers are the Pensacola News, Kissimmee Gazette, Palatka News, Eustis Lake Region, Ocala Star, Tallahassee Democrat, New Smyrna News, Stuart Daily News, Fort Pierce News-Tribune, Bartow Record, Sanford Signal, Tallahassee Morning Star, Homestead Leader, Panama City Beacon-Tribune and Haines City Herald.

The Tallahassee bureau is connected with the state leased wire day and night, and is maintained by the Florida members principally to secure state capital news.

The Associated Press has six staff correspondents in Florida, one in Tallahassee, two in Jacksonville, and one each in Orlando, Miami and Tampa. With the exception of the two Jacksonville Associated Press men, these correspondents constitute a "flying squadron," available for service at a moment's notice when outstanding news develops in any part of the state. The Tampa and the Miami correspondents, both sent out from the Southern division offices in Atlanta, opened their respective bureaus on last November 15. Both are given roving commissions, the Tampa correspondent to supervise activities of the or-

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 23—An estimated gain of 1,629,000 in population in the United States last year was announced today by the National Bureau of Economic Research. The indicated gain for 1925 was almost identical with that for 1924.

The estimated population of continental United States was placed at 115,940,000 on January 1, 1926, or a gain of more than ten millions since the last federal census in 1920.

The estimates were reached principally by a process of figures covering the registration area, upon arrivals and departures from the United States and upon a recapitulation of the work done by the bureau in former years.

There was a moderate decrease in the amount of net migration into the United States, the bureau said, but it was offset by a larger number of births and a smaller number of deaths.

The total population gain in 1925 was slightly larger than the average for the last seventeen years," said the report, "but materially less than that of 1923, when the large amount of immigration contributed to a population increase of 1,996,000, or of 1909, when, for the same cause, the population growth ran up to 2,173,000.

"During the last year, immigration played but a minor role in the population growth of the country, accounting for less than one-sixth of the total increase, the excess of births over deaths adding 1,367,000 persons, while immigration accounted for but 269,000 new inhabitants.

"It is a noteworthy fact that, despite the growth in population, both the number of births and the number of deaths were approximately the same in 1925 as in 1909. The year 1909 had an abnormally high birth rate, and is therefore not a typical year, but, since 1916, there appears to have been no tendency toward an increase in the number of children born in the United States, while the number of deaths tends to run lower than sixteen years ago."

The study was made by Dr. W. Ford L. King of the Bureau's staff.

When You Trade Your Car—

Ford owners are continually being approached by automobile salesmen who wish to "accept" Fords as part payment on more expensive cars.

It is perfectly logical that automobile dealers everywhere should be eager to trade with Ford owners. The Ford is the most popular automobile in the world. No other used car is so easy to sell as a used Ford—because everyone has confidence in Ford quality. And it is not expensive to re-condition, since Ford replacement parts are lowest in price.

Most automobiles carry greater discounts to dealers than the Ford—another reason why other dealers may offer the Ford owner a larger trade-in allowance.

But when you come to buy a new car, bear these facts in mind:

The amount of the trade-in allowance you can get is not the most important thing for you to consider. The big thing is the difference you have to pay. And remember, that the higher priced car will not be so easy to dispose of when you come to trade it in.

If you wish to trade your Ford for a new automobile, stick to the car that you know to be dependable, useful and economical. Go to your Ford dealer!

He will give you a fair and liberal allowance for your present Ford and will gladly arrange payment of the balance to suit your convenience.

When the deal is over, and you have your new and improved Ford, you will have the satisfaction of knowing positively that you took advantage of the greatest automobile value the world has ever seen—and saved a lot of money, too.

THOUGHTS

OF THE WEEK

RETURNING SPRING

Springtime is here. The time when daffodils and sweet williams rear their varicolored petals to the sky heralding the first approach of that season which all welcome.

How refreshing and invigorating is the morning air away in some beautiful woodland just as the sun comes up, and all around bathed in the dews of a summer night, which sparkle with dazzling beauty as the first rays of the morning sun kiss away the tears of night.

After a season of cold and bluster, when one is kept in doors away from the great outdoors and all the many wonderful things which it has to offer the approach of spring as it trips lightly on the carpet of green spread away on the meadow fields, gives one a new lease on life and makes happiness and contentment, and gives hope amid the worst surroundings.

The writer has often passed some humble cottage away from the busy hum of industry and looking into the front yard, lined with old fashioned flowers planted by hands long used to hardships and service, has been made to rejoice at the sight which came to view as merrygolds and bachelor buttons and others of this same family of flowers were blooming in profusion, with yards and walkways neat to perfection.

It is great some beautiful spring morning when the first rosy tints appear in the east, to follow some winding path adown some oft frequented way, and brush aside the barricade erected by the spider outposts as they have spun their silver breastworks all about as if to defy any intrusion.

It is also great to start a fishing just before the sun peeps over the eastern horizon, with anticipation of the day at its highest, as clamboring over some entanglements in the way one comes in a view of the spot where the waters are eddying and swishing, and you just know the big ones are awaiting your coming. The step quickens as you near the spot, and everything looks inviting and you just know in a short time you are going to land some of the fine trout or bream which you know live there.

Tackle is made ready, and a luscious craw tail or a steel back minnow is placed on the hook, and away goes that deceptive lure in the hope that soon the cork will start on a journey downward, and expectancy and hope play hide and seek as you wait.

Something is happening. Away goes that cork smoothly and systematically until only a faint outline of its red rings appear. The reel clasp is released, and you are generous with that silk line, as you watch it fed away to the water. Suddenly it stops, and you give a quick jerk, (not too hard) and the swish of the line through the water tells you that you have one of the gamiest fish to be found who is disputing your authority to pull him ashore. It's a trout, and he has fought himself down. You wind in the line, and prepare to put your hands on him, and just as you reach out to take a firm grasp of his shining symmetry, he gives one of those well known trout wiggles, and off he drops into the crystal water at your feet, and fish tale No. 1 is ready for being told when you reach home, and strange to say, but that was the biggest one encountered that day.

From the fields now can be seen the blue smoke curling upwards, a positive indication that the farmer has begun to make ready for the crop of the year, and is cleaning up unsightly places, getting it ready in order that the plow may be used to turn the soil up to the sunshine.

The spring. The snow white blossoms on the pear trees, and the blushing pink blossoms of the peach tree give an affirmative answer if there is any doubt.

Soon, carefully selected seed will be placed in the ground and the crop of the year will be started. How much laborious work and hope and despondency will both come before the harvest is realized, no one knows except the farmer who has so many varying things to hinder his work during the period of cultivation.

It is often the case that we put entirely too little stress on the importance of the farmer. Due to his unerring certainty of beginning the crop each season and carrying it through all the varying phases of cultivation to maturity, is just the reason each year that no one goes hungry in this great country of ours.

It's spring; get out into the great outdoors and listen to the songs of the birds and the gurgle of the brooks away from brick and mortar, and come back relaxed and renewed in energy for the daily battles of life which all must fight.

MANY "DRUNKEN DRIVERS" GO UNPUNISHED, MARCUS DOW SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23

—Thirty three percent of drunken automobile drivers go unpunished by the authorities is the startling statement made here by Marcus A. Dow, director of the Stewart-Warner Safety Council for the prevention of automobile accidents, who is here to attend the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, called by Secretary of Commerce Hoover and which opens its sessions to-morrow in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

Mr. Dow, who will present to the Hoover conference many other startling facts he has discovered in his many years of safety work, has just completed a survey of the death dealing automobile with the assistance of the chiefs of police in 185 cities and towns which he is compiling for the Stewart-Warner Safety Council of Chicago, to be used in his nation-wide campaign to help cut down the tremendous death toll due to automobile accidents. In an interview today prior to the opening of the three day conference Mr. Dow revealed some of the highspots in his investigation.

"In the survey of the contributing causes to automobile accidents," said Mr. Dow, "it has been made clear that drunken and reckless drivers of automobiles are numerous enough to be a big contribution factor to the street and highway accident record of the United States. The record of arrests shows this class of drivers to be an actual and grave menace throughout the entire nation, while adequate punishment of offenders is conspicuously lacking. The failure to punish is the most regrettable part of this serious situation.

"I have just received reports from the chiefs of police of 185 cities and towns which show that 14,505 persons were arrested for driving automobiles while intoxicated in 1925 and 146,766 arrests were made for speeding or reckless driving where no intoxication was charged. These cities covered in my survey represent 34 states and the District of Columbia. The population of the towns and cities on which this estimate is made totals 15,000,000.

"The most amazing fact revealed in these reports is that 33 per cent of the drunken drivers arrested received no punishment, their cases being either discharged or sentence suspended. We found that only 21 per cent arrested for intoxication were sent to jail and 46 per cent fined. Of those arrested for speeding or reckless driving and who were not drunk only 46 per cent were fined and one per cent sent to jail.

Assuming that the same conditions exist in all the other cities and towns of the United States as are found in those covered in the Stewart-Warner Safety Council survey, which is a reasonable assumption, there were at some time last year more than 124,000 persons driving automobiles on the streets and highways of the country while drunk. The number guilty of speeding and reckless driving where no intoxication was involved would include 5 per cent of the motorists of the United States.

"Every automobile with an intoxicated driver at the wheel becomes a potential death car and every car in the hands of a reckless driver a deadly weapon. It is obvious that if the automobile death and injury record is to be improved and the streets and highways made safer for the people, there must be a decided lightening up in the enforcement of law against drunken and reckless drivers, which our survey demonstrates is sadly lacking throughout the country generally."

Mr. Dow found just one bright spot in the course of his investigation. That was in Florida. At Jacksonville 192 persons were arrested for driving a car while intoxicated and everyone of them was punished.

Mr. Dow has been engaged in safety work for more than fourteen years. He left the Bureau of Safety of the New York police department to become the directing head of the Stewart-Warner Safety council. He is engaged in a nation wide campaign through public schools, police departments, highway commissions by radio and many other channels to help reduce the tremendous automobile death toll.

12 Years Ago From the Daily of TODAY

March 23, 1914

A session of the executive committee of the Morgan County Sunday School Association was held at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Present were: A. G. Patterson, chairman; J. F. Lovin, John W. Bailey, Miss Ellen Groendyke and N. B. Peake.

A citizenship rally will be held at the First Presbyterian church this evening, with Dan A. Poling, of Boston, delivering the principal address.

Mrs. W. E. Crawford was hostess to the Saturday club Saturday afternoon.

Miss Marie Mertz and little Miss Marion Terry, of Huntsville, were the week-end guests of Mrs. J. D. Bush.

The board of stewards of the First Methodist church will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

March having come in like a lion, there is pleasure in the hope March will go out like a lamb.

Considering the brevity in skirts, we can't help but wonder why people still call feminine dry law violators "bootleggers."

"Isn't it fortunate that the senators are not all deaf?" remarks the Albany-Decatur Daily. It would be more fortunate if more of them were dumb.—Dothan Eagle.

One of the differences between fame and notoriety is the lasting qualities of one, and the lack of the same qualities in the other. A Tennessee professor had preferred status on first pages of newspapers for a while, but now has dropped entirely out of the papers.

If parking facilities are not choked in these cities, there is not a real estate value in the Tennessee Valley. Step in the old boat some Saturday night and try to stop at any portion of the business sections of the cities, you'll do well if you don't have to leave your car at home.

NEBRASKA SHOWS SPEED N TRIAL OF MAN WHO STARTED REIGN OF TERROR

Nebraska gives evidence of a determination to check lawlessness in that state and, as a result of the determination of the courts, Frank Carter, "phantom slayer," charged with killing two residents of Omaha, now is confined in the death cell of the Omaha county jail, awaiting death in the electric chair.

His sentence was returned just 25 days after his capture. This, in itself is remarkable, but probably even more remarkable is the fact that the attorneys for the man pleaded insanity without avail.

The public defender contended that his client was a "moral imbecile" with a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde personality." In a good many communities, the plea may have carried weight. It did not in Nebraska and The Daily, for one, feels like doffing its hat and giving three heartfelt cheers for that state.

WHAT IS THE DUTY OF THE NEWSPAPER ON MATTERS THAT ARE PURELY POLITICAL

An interesting question as to the duty of Alabama newspapers toward things political has been brought into present campaign by one of the candidates, who tells the voters frankly that he intends to stay strictly within the amount of money permitted to be spent during the campaign, and that the voters need not look for "page advertisements" in the newspapers in his behalf, carrying his campaign platform and other material.

Inasmuch as another candidate recently has spent considerable money in publishing his platform, it is obvious that the remarks of one are aimed at the other.

This brings into the discussion the extent to which candidates should be rightfully expected to bear the burden of acquainting the voters with what the candidate stands for, and the duty of the newspaper in keeping the public informed. The Daily feels that both should share the burden.

A newspaper, by nature of its office, owes a certain amount of white space to public questions. Certainly the platform of a political candidate, taking into consideration that the platform, if the candidate is elected, will form the basis of what the government may be expected to do or not to do under the administration of the successful candidate, has an element of public interest. Therefore newspapers should give some space to these discussions.

Yet, newspapers are business enterprises and to succeed they must have revenue. Proceeds from political advertising, accepted only in an above-board transaction, is a legitimate means of revenue for a newspaper, and candidates who use newspaper space in this manner should not be subjected to criticism for it. The newspaper should not be called upon to bear the entire burden. Candidates should not expect it of newspapers.

CANDIDATES HAVE BUT FEW MORE DAYS IN WHICH TO ANNOUNCE

Citizens who have a hankering for political office will view with more than ordinary interest the "signs of spring" this season, inasmuch as only a few more days remain in which candidates may announce their candidacy for office in the democratic primary of August 10.

The state democratic committee, in adopting the campaign rules this year, for some unexplained reason, decided that in order to have their names on democratic ballots, candidates must qualify with the party organization by April 1. A simple matter of arithmetic emphasizes in the minds of prospective candidates that their time is short.

The campaign in Alabama this year will be an unusually long one, inasmuch as the final test of strength will not occur until next August. Time is provided for long campaigns by all of the candidates. This may, or may not be a beneficial consideration, for in that period, many opportunities will be created for mud-slinging, a feature which Alabama could get along very well without.

The ruling of the democratic organization will have no effect on municipal politics in the Twin Cities. Albany and Decatur have struggled along all these years, without a primary. The elections in the two cities come under the general law, and not the primary law, and candidates for city office have until summer to file their announcements, despite the fact that the city election is but a few weeks after the primary.

WHEN IS A LIBEL LIBELOUS? ONLY WHEN IT IS WRITTEN, CROWE FINDS

It is hard to conceive of anything keeping ahead of the law in these days of rapid multiplication of legal prohibitions, yet even the astute Robert Crowe, public prosecutor in Chicago, is unable to discover how he may obtain redress from a Chicago radio station which he accuses of libeling him several nights ago.

The station sometimes broadcasts the programs of the Moulin Rouge, a Chicago cabaret and, on this occasion, was broadcasting from that place, when Mr. Crowe happened to tune his receiving set, at his home, to the station. His surprise may well be imagined when he heard he announcer state:

"State's Attorney Crowe is with us tonight, enjoying his night life." Naturally to one who, at the time, was sitting quietly with his family by his own fireside, the announcement was exasperating and Mr. Crowe became highly indignant.

The story goes that so incensed was he, that he called to his side a dozen or so of his trusted agents and staged a raid on the Moulin Rouge and placed the announcer under arrest.

The broadcasting station offered the excuse the whole thing was a joke, but the state's attorney, not being in a humorous mood, failed to see it, and he began a hectic search for a statute under which the announcer could be made to suffer legal punishment.

Fortunately for the radio announcer, no such law could be discovered, and the worst he could be charged with was "disorderly conduct."

Representative Blanton has offered an amendment to the radio regulation bill, providing that slander over the radio will fall under the same category of slander on the printed page. Congress may accept it, but in the meantime, radio has kept one step ahead of the law-makers.

FLORIDA CHANGES TACTICS AND NOW SEEKS ALL-YEAR "TOURIST SEASON"

Florida, in the course of her extraordinary development, has found it necessary several times to change the tactics by means of which she enticed venturesome souls into that state and, incidentally, it must be admitted that in every instance Florida appears to have "guessed right."

A few months ago, Florida was in the throes of a real estate boom probably without precedent in the nation, at least, without precedent in the South. Reports from there indicate, however, that something has happened to check the inrush of realty promoters and speculators, and the state is returning to more normal conditions.

The DeLand Daily News recently spoke editorially of the new kind of tourist season about to be enjoyed by Florida. Instead of the original visits of tourists who wanted only to find a vacation spot as nearly their ideal as possible, or later visits by overnight speculators in real estate, Florida now is looking forward to year-round "tourist season," bringing farmers and mechanics to the state to make their homes.

The News says:

Florida's so-called "tourist season" which until last summer nearly always ended between April 15 and May 1, will continue this summer, but the "tourists" will not be of the variety that poured into the state last year. Instead of get-rich-quick speculators and binder boys the 1926 summer tourist, it is indicated, will be persons seeking a permanent residence with a sprinkling of those who couldn't come to Florida last summer but who will come this year just to see what it is all about.

Two classes of people most probably will predominate among the arrivals this summer, the small farmer, and the mechanic. It is not generally known that farmers from the middle west have been trickling into the state for months and settling. More than fifty such settlers have landed in one county during the last few months and all of them have gone on small farms, none of which consists of as much as forty acres. These kind of farmers have been locating elsewhere in increasing numbers and it is certain that reports of conditions will induce many others to come to the state this year if for nothing less than to look around. The railroads on April 6, will put into effect a home-seekers' rate to Florida for parties of five or more persons. Developers of agricultural lands in the state are cognizant of this and it is expected that a stream of homeseekers will be pouring into Florida during the weeks the tickets are on sale.

There will be more building construction in progress this summer than ever before due to the easing of transportation conditions and the free flow of building material and mechanics, dissatisfied with working conditions in the north and east, will be coming to the state in search of employment.

To outsiders the new plan for expansion in Florida seems much better than the old. The era of speculation in that state, of course, caused it to make strides longer than could have been made otherwise, but the growth was not so sound, nor steady, as it will be when the growth means the accumulation of wage earners and farmers. Florida heretofore has had too many people who cared nothing for the state, except as they could make money out of her soil.

This new class of small investors and home-seekers will have the interests of the state really at heart.

In old days the man with the stacks of 100 franc gold pieces and the piles of pale blue French notes before him was a Russian grand duke. Now the Russian gentleman losing 600,000 francs in an evening is Mr. Malequin, official of the Soviet republic. It is easier to change men's government than to change men.

A government that allows religion to manage itself is wise. There is no fight more dangerous or more bitter than a religious fight.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl eighteen years of age, and have been worried for some time over a little matter. Several young men have told me that you couldn't trust a blonde woman. I would thank you very much for your advice on this matter.

MARY: Trustworthiness is not a matter of color, creed or complexion, Mary. Whether you have raven hair or hair that looks as though it had been dipped in carrot-juice don't worry about your reputation. It is based on what you yourself are—on your character, your disposition and your conduct—not on what you look like. As long as you know you are above reproach you can afford to ignore the facetious remarks of your acquaintances, and prove to them how silly their theory is.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl of eighteen, and am very much in love with a young man a few years older. We have been going together for two years.

BILL: It was not only proper but very gracious for the young man to have called on you while you were ill.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I want to give a farewell party for a girl. Do you think it is nice if I only invite girls?

MARY T.: If you do not wish to invite any of your young men friends to this party, it is quite all right for you to limit it to girls.

INTEREST HIGH IN REVIVAL SERVICES

Stirring Message Given By Rev. Hunter On Power In Faith

A fine interest was manifested in the revival services at the Central Methodist church on Monday evening and a large and appreciative audience gathered for the first week-night service.

The pastor, Rev. Jas. D. Hunter, delivered a message on the theme "The Power of Small Resources in the Grasp of Faith." Particular reference was made to the hesitation of Moses when called to deliver God's people. Notwithstanding that the eternal Being had pledged his limitless resources, Moses hesitated in responding to this call. But the preacher reminded his hearers that "it is not what I am but what God is," that counts. Facing the great opportunities of life it is a tragedy when called for a man to refuse to do God's service.

An earnest appeal was made to Christian people to put their resources at the disposition of God in Christian work. A large congregation arose at the close of the message in response to an invitation to indicate willingness to do the will of God.

Walter H. Makin, the song leader, who arrived in the afternoon conducted a song service just before the sermon. A large chorus met him and an especially beautiful selection, "Give Thine Own Way, Lord," was given. A large young peoples choir was also in readiness and sang a special song. Mr. Makin's special song had an appealing message.

The regular week day program began today with services at the L. & N. Shops at noon and a luncheon and Bible Hour for the business women at the "Y" at noon. Miss Fella Richardson, Woman's Worker, will bring a message at this hour.

A large number of children gathered at the church at three o'clock for the story and recreational hour. Tonight is "Church Night" and the pastor will bring a special message to the church people. A great crowd is expected at the services.

PICTURE ACTRESS TRAILED IN CHICAGO

Los Angeles Attorney Hopes To Solve Taylor's Death

CHICAGO, March 23.—District Attorney Asa Keyes, of Los Angeles county, Calif., was here today trailing a motion picture actress in his determination to solve the mystery surrounding the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, picture director in 1922.

The district attorney, who has been in New York, Boston, Detroit, following new clues in the strange case of murder in filmland's real life, expressed the belief that he would find the actress today. He withheld the woman's name and other information.

Mr. Keyes is anxious to interview Mabel Normand, movie star, who visited Taylor a few minutes before the shooting. Told that Miss Normand, in Los Angeles, had said she told all she knew in connection with the slaying and was willing to talk with him, further, Mr. Keyes said he wondered then why Miss Normand had slipped away from him in New York.

TELEPHONE COMPANY TELLS OF RURAL SERVICE VALUES

Stressing the need of the telephone in the rural sections, the Southern Bell Telephone company brought together nearly 40 farmers of this section to explain to them the values of efficient phone service in the agricultural sections. Heads of various departments addressed the farmers during their brief stay in the cities and during which time they were served a bounteous dinner at the Decatur Cafe and Hotel.

J. B. Cassells, local manager, met the visiting farmers at the telephone plant on Johnston street from which point they were escorted to the Decatur Cafe. J. B. Cassells then gave a brief account of the history of the telephone, followed with a short talk by J. O. Townsend, plant chief, who spoke on the kinds of lines for most efficient service and the maintenance of those lines.

Mrs. Charles Johnson, chief operator, instructed the agriculturists upon how to make their phone calls. J. W. Waller, Cullman manager, talked upon the maintenance subject and the payment of accounts promptly. C. L. Saunders entered into the long distance phase of the service, stressing the need for keeping up lines. J. C. Ford, county farm agent, then added his endorsement to the installation of rural phone services.

Included in the guest list of the company on this occasion were: U. S. Fuller, Moulton, R. 1; J. A. Oliver, Moulton, R. 1; F. C. Terry, Town Creek; Ellis Conner, Town Creek, R.

New Method Quickly Banishes Heavy Coughs

Why be annoyed and weakened by persistent, strength-sapping coughing spells when you can, through a very simple treatment, quickly stop all irritation and very often banish the trouble entirely in 24 hours?

This treatment is based on the famous prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at bed-time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of night coughing. Thus, with the throat soothed and cleared, coughing stops quickly and you sleep all night undisturbed.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

ATE TOO FAST

South Carolinian Took Black-Draught For Indigestion, and Says He Could Soon Eat Anything.

Ballentine, S. C.—Mr. W. B. Boulknight, of this place, gave the following account of the use of Theford's Black-Draught: "Just after I married I had indigestion. Working out, I got in the habit of eating fast, for which I soon paid by having a tight, bloated feeling after meals. This made me very uncomfortable. I would feel stupid and drowsy, didn't feel like working. I was told it was indigestion. Some one recommended Black-Draught and I took it after meals. I soon could eat anything again."

"I used it for colds and biliousness and it will knock out a cold and carry away the bile better and quicker than any liver medicine I have ever found."

Eating too fast, too much, or faulty chewing of your food, often causes discomfort after meals. A pinch of Black-Draught, washed down with a swallow of water, will help to bring prompt relief. Bloating, gas, eructations, bad breath and other common symptoms of indigestion have disappeared after Black-Draught has been taken for several days.

LARGE ACREAGE OF COTTON INDICATED

Fertilizer Sales Ahead By Far Figures of Previous Years

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 23.—Indications that a very large acreage of cotton will be planted this year are contained in reports issued here by the Alabama Farm Bureau.

As the farmers proceed with their work preparatory to planting their 1926 crops, the report says, information continues to develop indicating that a very large acreage will be planted in cotton and not enough in corn, hay and other feed crops this year. Reports from every cotton-producing state indicate a strong tendency toward cotton and apparently Alabama farmers expect to plant as much cotton as they have ever planted in one year.

Fertilizer sales to date this season are far ahead of the same date last year. The final increase is not expected to be equivalent to the increases in sales to date. Farmers are buying earlier under the stimulus of operation in order to get it at a lower price and have it on hand before time to put it into the ground.

Weather conditions generally have been favorable to crop production in Alabama. The heavy rains of January and early February were followed by a period of relatively little rain for the season. An unusual amount of sunny cool weather put the soil in good condition and enabled farmers to go ahead with their plowing. Official reports indicate that up to early March more than the normal amount of plowing had been done.

Reflecting the favorable outlook, the tendency of the price of cotton has been downward for some time. Old crop prices are approximately 5 to 7 cents and new prices around eight cents a pound under quotations a year ago. The cotton trade seems to be inclined to a 17 or 18 cent level for October, and cotton growers who are looking forward are preparing to plant with the understanding that present conditions point to lower prices for cotton next fall.

The bachelor's leap year yell is 'An onch a day keeps the girls away.'

Nobody really lives as long as a rich relative seems to live.

The height of ignorance is for a girl to get married simply because she is tired of working.

Her Friend: Was he broke?
Eloise: I don't know whether he was broke or not; but he put a blue pencil through about half my order.

To be an interesting conversationist one must let others do ninety per cent of the talking.

Having looked carefully around we conclude that soap is the last thing used in the acquirement of that school girl complexion.

Two hard citizens were standing in a secluded spot talking confidentially. One of them suddenly sneaked away while the other stood on guard. Soon the first one was seen to emerge from a window and join his pal.

'Did you see anything?' whispered the one in waiting.

'Now, de guy what lives in dere is a lawyer,' growled the other.

'Dat's hard luck,' said his pal. Did you see anything?'

Master Plumber—Right! I'll take him.

Press Executives Called For Meet

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 23.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Alabama Press Association has been called for here on Saturday, March 27. The meeting is scheduled for the Exchange Hotel and will convene at 10 o'clock.

This call was recently issued by J. C. McLendon of Bay Minette, president of the association, who indicated at the time that probably the most important question to come before the committee was the consideration of the time and place of meeting of the annual convention of the Alabama Press Association. Several towns are bidding for the meeting.

Dr. Yarbrough To Head Baptist Work

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 23.—Dr. W. F. Yarbrough, for the past six years pastor of the First Baptist church of Hattiesburg, Miss., is to be the superintendent of the department of evangelism for the Alabama Baptist convention.

This announcement was made at state headquarters here recently by D. F. Green, secretary-treasurer of the executive board of the state convention. Dr. Yarbrough was formerly secretary of the state board, and also a former pastor of the Baptist church at Anniston.

Dr. Yarbrough expects to begin his work in Alabama on April 1. Mr. Green stated. He recently tendered his resignation as pastor of the Hattiesburg church, but agreed to serve a few weeks longer, until a new minister could be obtained.

The executive board of the Baptist convention in Alabama some time ago created the office of superintendent of evangelism and named a committee to select a man to have charge of this new field. After several weeks deliberation and search for a man to lead the evangelistic program, the committee unanimously agreed upon Dr. Yarbrough. The committee is composed of Dr. A. H. Reid, of Sylacauga, chairman, Dr. R. Kelly White of Marion, Dr. J. O. Williams of Bessemer, Dr. J. R. Hobbs of Birmingham and J. H. Holcombe of Gadsden.

Golf Game Costs Chicago Capitalist $25,000 In Match at Pasadena, Calif.

There may be more to this golf proposition that appears on the surface.

Reports come from Pasadena, Calif., of a match played there between Archie M. Andrews and Frederick Bartlett. Chicago capitalists, who, finding themselves in disagreement on the price of a Chicago building, went to the fairway to settle the dispute. Andrews defeated Bartlett, and, as a result, he will receive $75,000 for his building, instead of $50,000.

Twenty-five thousand for one game of golf. Oh, well, maybe it doesn't make so much difference to folks to deal in half million dollar structures.

Chinatown Character Is To Be Hanged For Killing Three

(Associated Press)

LIVERPOOL, England, March 23.—Lock Ah Tam, "the beloved murderer," known to the Chinatowns of New York, San Francisco and many other cities of the world, indeed, wherever his people are gathered will be hanged today for the murder of his Welsh wife and two beautiful daughters—Cecilia, 17, and Doris, 20.

Lock Ah Tam was so benevolent that he was loved by his countrymen in the seven corners of the globe, but at the end some change took place in him, and, in the midst of a celebration at his home he shot down, seemingly without reason, his wife and daughters, whom he had surrounded with all the luxuries of life. Then he calmly telephoned for the police.

Lock Ah Tam, a man of 52, came to England from China 20 years ago. He became naturalized, married a Welsh girl and prospered in business. He was rich, powerful and mysterious. Whether he was prominent in some big Chinese society is not clear, but his influence reached many countries. He befriended thousands of his needy countrymen.

Chinese in all parts of Europe and America subscribed a huge fund for his defense. Sir Edward Marshall Hall, one of the distinguished lawyers of England, defended him, receiving for his service what was declared to have been a record fee. The defense pleaded that Lock Ah Tam's mind was underbalanced by business worries and that he was not responsible for his act. He was convicted, however, by the jury and higher courts sustained that verdict.
